THE MONARCHIST LEAGUE OF CANADA - 53rd ANNIVERSARY 1970-2023

CANADIAN DELEGATION TO CORONATION

Conspicuous absence of Lieutenant Governors regrettable

On May 3rd, the Prime Minister announced the Canadians he had selected to join him and his wife in attending the Coronation. Leading his list was the Governor General and her spouse Whit Fraser. They were joined by Assembly of First Nations National Chief RoseAnne Archibald; President of Inuit Tapiriit Kanatami Natan Obed; President of the Métis National Council Cassidy Caron; the Clerk of the Privy Council and Secretary to the Cabinet, Janice Charette. As “young leaders” were Sarah Mazhero of the Prime Minister’s Youth Council; CEO of Young Diplomats of Canada Christina Caouette; founder of Halifax Helpers Rebeccah Raphael; President of the French-Canadian Youth Federation Marguerite Tölgyesi; and Maryam Tsegaye, winner of the global science competition Breakthrough Junior Challenge. The list was rounded out by Astronaut Jennifer Sidey-Gibbons; and three holders of National Honours who joined the Abbey procession of similar individuals from the Realms: Order of Merit and Companion of the Order of Canada Margaret MacMillan; Cross of Valour recipient Leslie Arthur Palmer; and Canada’s flag bearer, astronaut Jeremy Hansen, who will travel to the moon next year as part of the Artemis II mission.

Selecting only 17 folk to represent a country of 40 million subjects – of which but 13 were effectively discretionary – was of course a thankless task, especially given that this Coronation, absent the temporary seating erected in 1953, regrettably could accommodate only a little more than a quarter of the number then present. We have no quarrel with the selections – but we feel strongly that there was one glaring omission which the Palace should never have allowed to happen, nor the Prime Minister to overlook even if the Palace chose to do so.

That is – our Lieutenant Governors. Quite apart from their constitutional role, these individuals, day to day, on shoe-string budgets and with minimal staff support, effectively “are” The King to most Canadians with their constant round of imaginative events, which encourage the linkage of daily life – individual, community, organizational and more – to the Maple Crown.

If indeed the Palace could not include the vice-regals as a special category, the PM should have asked them to choose two of their number to represent them all. This is something about which we have made note of for the next Coronation – may it be many years.

CANADIAN CORONATION CEREMONY

LeBlanc Speech a Highlight

The Official Canadian Celebration of the Coronation was held in Ottawa on the day of Crowning.

Representing the League were the following invited by the Government of Canada: Chairman Finch, Senior Québec Officer Karim Al-Dahdah, Social Media Coordinator Logan Luit, student member and office assistant Dominik Wrona and Bruce Hallsor, Senior Officer in British Columbia, accompanied by his wife Sharon. The account below is derived from impressions of the event kindly shared with the league by the Hallsors, and represents their personal views.

The Canadian coronation ceremony was a great idea, and by and large the government got all the big things right about it. There was an emphasis on non-partisan causes which are important to our King, such as heritage, reconciliation, and the environment. We were all given a Canadian Coronation Pin. There was a pledge of loyalty by government ministers. The event was capped by announcements and unveilings from the Royal Canadian Mint, from Canada Post, and from the Chief Herald of Canada, who produced enlarged representations of a new coin, stamp, Standard, and Crown, also announcing that The King would soon appear on all general circulation coinage and the $20.00 banknote. There was a collection of talented performers from a lively PEI string trio, a solemn Indigenous drumming ensemble, and a popular Quebecois chanteuse – but a notable absence of anyone from west of Ontario. And we could hear the salutes being fired across the street on Parliament Hill.

While the government got much right, there was unfortunately something lost in the details of execution. Most notable was the way that the Royal anthem was presented. A choir accompanied the playing of O Canada with singing, but it did not sing God Save the King. This left the audience quite confused, with most people standing silently – a lost opportunity for a rousing conclusion.

It would also have been better if a ceremony of this import had involved more prominent Canadians. Imagine if Vancouver's Micheal Buble, who was chosen by the King for his coronation playlist, had been asked to perform. It would have elevated the cachet of the event significantly. And while it is understandable that the Governor General was unable to preside over the ceremony because she was leading a delegation to Westminster, could we not have recruited a past Governor General, or even a past Prime Minister, to act as a host of the event or to give a speech of loyalty on behalf of Canadians? I have no doubt that other important national figures such as Wayne Gretzky, or David Suzuki, would have eagerly participated in this ceremony if asked. One has to wonder why we were presented with a series of earnest and talented, but relatively obscure and unknown figures, to preside over such an important national event.

Another matter which was correct on the big picture, but lost in the execution, was the unveiling of a new Canadian crown. While I think there is a good argument to be made for a distinctive Canadian crown, it was unfortunate that there was no consultation in advance of the design that was chosen. The announcement appeared to be a rushed afterthought, rather than a cause for celebration, and the Chief Herald was unable to answer basic questions about how the new Crown would be used, or why it was not being used that day on any of the other graphics in the room, including in the Canadian Cipher, or on the other symbols of state which were on display at the coronation event. Moreover, as it does not appear that there is any intention to actually create a physical crown, this symbol is merely a design element, and its permanence and longevity must be called into question. If the government of Canada, without consultation and without any parliamentary authorisation, can simply change a national symbol by fiat, what will stop a future government from tinkering with this symbol of nationhood, or other symbols, in the same fashion?

My last criticism was the complete lack of pageantry and ceremony to the occasion. While I am by no means suggesting that the Canadian ceremony should have tried to compete with the UK one, it would have been very simple and appropriate to have a moment in the event where the audience formally pledged allegiance to the new Monarchy, or at the very least were invited to shout out "God Save the King", as people were at Westminster. It would not have been difficult to add in some trumpeters to the occasion, and to have a procession of dignitaries to add some gravitas to the occasion.

We as Monarchists know that symbols and ceremonies are important. We use them in our everyday life when we mark important occasions such as holding weddings or remembering a departed loved one. They are also important in our nation's public life, and they are used every day by governments to reinforce confidence in and respect for our parliaments, our courtrooms, and our military. A more generous use of ceremonial intent would have added to the richness of the Canadian coronation celebration, and would have helped it to accomplish its goal of bringing Canadians together to help us look forward as a country with optimism for the reign of our new Sovereign.

The reception was a chance for us to talk to a few old friends in the room, and make new ones, including meeting for the first time some members of the Monarchist League whom we, being from Victoria, had only known previously through correspondence. Many who we spoke to in conversation echoed the words of the speakers at the ceremony, telling us that they were very optimistic about the reign of Charles III, and that Canada was well served by our institution of Constitutional Monarchy. Many also shared with us the sense of great loss they sometimes unexpectedly felt with the death of Her late Majesty, and that the Coronation was a chance to put that feeling of loss behind, and turn with optimism to a new reign and a better future.

AN EXCELLENT ADDRESS BY A MINISTER OF THE CROWN!

Hon Dominic LeBlanc addresses Official Canadian Ceremony celebrating the Coronation

(Speech starts around the 34:00 mark)

More than a few people who heard the Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs on Coronation Day asked if his speech had been written by the League!

Of course the suggestion was made tongue in cheek, and it is a very good thing that it was not of our composition: it clearly came from M. LeBlanc's own heart and tongue – a fact reinforced when the absence of a text which we had requested was answered by a staffer who explained that he usually speaks from notes.

It deserves a place as one of the best tributes to the Crown, deeply-felt, well explained, that any government official has made down the decades.

Son of the 25th Governor General of Canada, who knows where his future might take him? Worth a listen – well done, Minister!

A LABOUR OF GREAT LOYALTY & LOVE

Première fois: le Rite du Couronnement en français – Coronation Rite in French

In a stupendous effort demanding nearly 48 hours of non-stop work, LOGAN LIUT of Toronto translated the Coronation Rite immediately upon the release of the English text on April 29.

This is the sort of unrequested labour of love and loyalty the League would never dreamed of asking anyone to do – it also reflects both our own and the 2nd year student at University of Toronto's conviction that whenever possible, matters of Royal importance should be conveyed in both Official Languages.

The first URL below is Logan's translation. The two URL's following provide the official English text, followed by the same text with the Church of England's commentary on changes from the 1953 rite.

CORONATION FESTIVITIES ACROSS CANADA

Gratifying indeed was the range of celebrations across Canada, largely organized without subsidy or fanfare, ranging from vice-regal receptions and religious services to a Concert in Cowichan, BC; bell-ringing in Regina; a BBQ and fireworks display in rural Manitoba; a Picnic and Tree-planing in Halifax – community and family parties – many utilizing the League's theme of Neighbours & Newcomers Together. The indefatigable Sandra Barker arranged for City Hall in London, ON to fly the League Flag from May 6-11, and for 32 worship centers to ring their bells at noon on Coronation Day. In Peterborough, ON came news that its Museum hosted an exhibit of "Hiawatha Indian Baskets" which were given the Prince of Wales during his 1860 tour of Canada. It has been housed at Osborne House, Isle of Wight. Royal Collection staff from the UK oversaw the set-up of the displays – yet

Some larger events were funded in part by the League, thanks to a generous bequest by the late Kent Jackson, of Toronto, such as those which took place in Grand Manan NB; Montreal, Arnprior, Flesherton, Kingston and Toronto ON; Warren & Altona, MB; Tisdale & Qu'Appelle SK.

RÉCEPTION DES MONARCHISTES QUÉBÉCOIS

Le lieutenant-gouverneur participe

Le dimanche 7 mai, un jour seulement après le couronnement, la section québécoise de la Ligue monarchiste du Canada s'est réunie pour célébrer le couronnement du roi Charles III. Une très belle participation de membres et d'amis, anciens et nouveaux, se sont retrouvés au Burgundy Lion Pub, dans le quartier de la Petite-Bourgogne à Montréal.

L'après-midi a commencé par des retrouvailles avec des membres que nous n'avions pas rencontrés en personne depuis un certain temps et, bien sûr, par l'accueil des nouveaux membres du groupe. Les conversations se sont concentrées sur le couronnement, en échangeant des histoires sur l'heure à laquelle nous nous sommes réveillés ou si elle a été enregistrée pour être visionnée plus tard. Bien sûr, nous avons aussi échangé nos moments préférés du défilé, de la cérémonie ou des scènes au balcon. Un fil conducteur était présent dans ces discussions : l'enthousiasme pour le règne du roi Charles III et l'optimisme quant à ses actions à long terme.

La Ligue a été doublement honorée d'accueillir son Honneur le Lieutenant Gouverneur du Québec, M. J-Michel Doyon. Après une introduction joyeuse de notre hôte Karim Al-Dahdah, Son Honneur a parlé avec éloquence de ses propres impressions sur l'événement de la veille et de son rôle en tant que représentant du Roi dans la province de Québec. Des anecdotes personnelles ont été partagées, puis nous avons tous été entraînés dans une interprétation émouvante de God Save the King, suivie d'un toast à leurs majestés le roi Charles III et la reine Camilla.

Les invités ont dégusté une sélection de douceurs telles que des tartelettes aux citrons, du gâteau au fromage verrine, de la panna cotta au lait de poule et du pudding au caramel gluant dans une salle spacieuse et aérée, traditionnellement réservée au "afternoon tea". La salle était dotée de hauts plafonds, de murs feuillus, d'une grande collection de tasses à thé ornées et d'armoiries élaborées.

Alors que l'événement tirait à sa fin, de nombreux membres ont parlé du désir d'organiser des événements comme celui-ci et de leur satisfaction d'avoir trouvé un moyen de célébrer. La section québécoise de la Ligue espère que ses événements deviendront plus fréquents. Un véritable succès et une participation étonnante. Huzzah au Roi et à nos fidèles membres!

QUEBEC MONARCHISTS' RECEPTION

Lieutenant Governor Attends

On Sunday May 7, just one day after the coronation, the Quebec branch of the Monarchist League of Canada met to celebrate the coronation of King Charles III. A fine turnout of both long-standing members as well as newly minted friends joined together at the Burgundy Lion Pub in Montreal's Little Burgundy district.

The afternoon started off with reconnecting with members whom we haven't had a face-to-face meet-up with in a while and of course welcoming in the new members to the group. The conversations revolved around the coronation, swapping stories of what time we woke up or if it was recorded for future viewing. Of course, we also swapped our favourite moments from the parade, ceremony, or the balcony scenes. One common thread was present in these discussions: the excitement for King Charles III's reign and optimism for his long-visioned actions.

The League was doubly honoured to host his Honour the Lieutenant Governor of Quebec, M. J-Michel Doyon. After a joyous introduction from our host Karim Al-Dahdah, His Honour eloquently spoke of his own impressions of the previous day's event and his role as the King's Representative in the province of Quebec. Personal anecdotes were shared and then we all were led into a stirring rendition of God Save the King, followed by a toast to their majesties King Charles III and Queen Camilla.

Guests enjoyed a selection of sweets such as lemons tarts, cheesecake verrine, eggnog panna cotta and sticky toffee pudding in a breezy and spacious room traditionally reserved for afternoon tea. The room boasted high ceilings, leafy walls and a large collection of ornate tea cups and elaborate coat of arms.

As the event wound down many members spoke of the desire for event such as this and how they were thankful to find an outlet for celebration. It's the hope of the Quebec chapter of the League that its meetings can become more frequent. A true success and amazing attendance. Huzzah to King and to our loyal membership!

CANADA'S NEW ROYAL STYLE & TITLES ACT

Changes to the Royal Style and Titles were buried in an omnibus Budget bill especially to avoid giving Bloc MPs a platform for their views which, dedicated to destroying Canada, include abolition of our Constitutional Monarchy! Bill C-47 received the Royal Assent on June 22 and thus is now law.

The King's new Canadian Style and Titles runs as follows:

Charles the Third, by the Grace of God King of Canada and His other Realms and Territories, Head of the Commonwealth.

In 1953, Prime Minister St Laurent introduced a separate bill and explained its provisions at some length, with eloquence and enthusiasm. We understand the reason for the new Royal Style & Titles' being presented in the omnibus Bill advanced via a Ways & Means Motion to become part of The Budget Implementation Act No. 1 2023 and in turn Act 510. This was in order to avoid giving republicans (a few NDPers beginning with their leader, and of course the Bloc MPs) to make a scene, and to prattle about their republican views. As much as M. Trudeau waxes enthusiastic about the Crown on occasion, he was probably well advised in 2023 to follow this new procedure.

The League supports the changes themselves, which state, first and foremost, and with clarity, The King's position in this Realm. It would have been legally harmless to leave in the reference to the UK, as our courts recently upheld the principle of symmetry, whereby the Sovereign of the UK is Canada's Sovereign - but given the general lack of knowledge of the finer points of our polity, the omission is probably as well.

The same may be said of the loss of "Defender of the Faith." The days are long gone when Prime Minister St Laurent could state without argument that "in our countries [referring to the Realms] there are people who have faith in the direction of human affairs by an all-wise Providence; and we felt that it was a good thing that the civil authorities would proclaim that their organization is such that it is a defense of the continued beliefs in a supreme power that orders the affairs of mere men, and that there could be no reasonable objection from anyone who believed in the Supreme Being in having the sovereign, the head of the civil authority, described as a believer in and a defender of the faith in a supreme ruler."

We have never had a state religion even in the days when faith flourished - thus the temptation for the republicans of today to make mischief had the title remained in a Canada much more secular - and in adherence, much more diverse - than was true of 1953. The Anglican Church of Canada in particular was never a state church, however much some of its pastors and people retain an affection for the Crown, one perhaps inherited, but never due to its enjoying any legal status in Canada as a state church. That "Grace of God" survived, we believe, was a compromise between also retaining the denominational reference and no reference to the Deity whatsoever. It might be argued that while adherence to many denominations has diminished, spirituality - the notion of a divine being - M. St Laurent's "all-wise Providence" - remains.

A MESSAGE TO FIRE-STRUCK COMMUNITIES IN THE WEST MESSAGE AUX COMMUNAUTÉS DE L'OUEST FRAPPÉES PAR LE FEU

My wife and I were deeply concerned to learn of the wildfires ravaging communities in Western Canada. We send our most special thoughts and prayers to all those who have been displaced and who have lost their homes, businesses or property. We would also like to express our deepest admiration to the first responders and volunteers who have been working to bring the fires under control, while also supporting their neighbours and communities in need.

We hold many fond memories of our visits to Western Canada and know that those affected will rise to this challenge with customary Canadian strength, resilience and determination.

CHARLES III

OUR MOUNTIES HAIL KING AS COMMISSIONER-IN-CHIEF

On Friday at Windsor Castle, King Charles III became Commissioner-in-Chief of the RCMP in its 150th year of proud service under three names during seven Reigns. High Commissioner for Canada in the UK Ralph Goodale joined HM for the ceremony at Windsor Castle. Acting RCMP Commissioner Mike Duheme presented Charles a commemorative RCMP Officer's Sword. In addition, the King was officially presented with 'Noble', a beautiful black mare from the RCMP Musical Ride.

Concern About Two Statements by Governor General

THE GOVERNOR GENERAL & THE CANADIAN CROWN

GOVERNOR GENERAL'S BEAUTIFUL CORONATION DRESS

Her Excellency wore a stunning dress at the Coronation Service!

After two months and more than 50 hours of work, Beatrice Deer's noted career as a seamstress - which started age 13! - must have met its greatest accomplishment in designing and executing The Governor General's dress for The King's Coronation. Deer is a singer and songwriter who was born in Quaqtaq, Nunavik (QC). Beatrice explained that she was able to express Mme Simon's advocacy for Indigenous peoples through her design; that from the beading and embroidery to the choice of colours, each element of this dress was been carefully thought out and reflected long-standing traditions. Her Excellency's Coat of Arms can be seen on the front: a shield that reflects not only her life story but also her commitment to reconciliation.

JUNE 9: GG COMMENTS ON STATUE DESECRATION

nationalpost.com/opinion/first-reading-governor-general-wont-say-whether-statue-desecration-is-right-or-wrong

Statement by Chairman Finch:

Most reasonable Canadians are surely against vandalizing public property. Violence and mob rule has no place in a democratic country. Period. Reconciliation does not equal republicanism, and tarnishing royal symbols isn't going to advance the cause of reconciliation one bit. Instead, it risks alienating an otherwise sympathetic audience. Surely, the Governor General would understand this.

In respect of Her Excellency's interview with the Globe & Mail, published May 3 - Chairman Finch decided that the League's response in form of an Open Letter to Mrs Simon would come after the Coronation in order to avoid controversy that might in any way overshadow the joyous festivities shared by Canadians.

9 JUIN: COMMENTAIRES DE LA GG SUR LA PROFANATION DE STATUES

Déclaration du président Finch:

La plupart des Canadiens raisonnables sont certainement contre le vandalisme des biens publics. La violence et la loi du plus grand nombre n'ont pas leur place dans un pays démocratique. Point final. La réconciliation n'est pas synonyme de républicanisme, et le fait de ternir les symboles royaux ne fera pas avancer la cause de la réconciliation. Au contraire, cela risque d'aliéner un public par ailleurs sympathique. La gouverneure générale devrait certainement comprendre cela.

An Open Letter to the Governor General

May 10, 2023

Your Excellency,

How wonderful it was to read of your – and leaders of national Indigenous organizations – having an audience with His Majesty The King in prior to his Coronation. As you know The King lends a sympathetic ear when it comes to reconciliation.

How spectacular you looked on the day of the Coronation, donning a dress designed specifically for this occasion by a talented Nunavik artist. Your pride radiated in the many pictures I saw.

However, Your Excellency, do you have any idea how much your remarks on the Canadian Crown and our King have deeply hurt many in the land to which you are supposed to bring unity and common purpose, rather than division and discord?

How on earth did you feel it appropriate to express those views – dubious from viceregal lips at any time – but especially on the weekend of The King's Coronation? How would you feel if your Installation as Governor General had been clouded by someone on the government payroll whose comments would garner the attention that yours did?

What do you imagine Charles – as a human being – might feel at the ceremonial inauguration of his time as Sovereign to hear and read your critique of himself and his role in this country? Even more unbelievable in that you are one of the few Canadians who have access and ability – and privilege – to have the Monarch hear your counsels and discuss anything you want in confidence.

At least I am comforted by your Coronation Day statement where you expressed your continued support for our Sovereign in his important work. It is my hope that moving forward this support will be strengthened and demonstrated daily in your role as The King's Representative in Canada.

In sorrow, not anger; and in expectation, not gloom, I remain,

Your Excellency's obedient servant,

Robert Finch

Dominion Chairman,
the Monarchist League of Canada

A life-long loyal subject of The King and his late Mother

ON A MORE POSITIVE NOTE

At the same time, we certainly laud Her Excellency's statement on Coronation Day, and hope that it will be her tone in future – saving concerns and even criticism which she can rightly share with the Prime Minister or indeed The King himself.

In a statement congratulating His Majesty, Mme Simon noted that while so much has changed in the 70 years since the last coronation, including the Crown, "it continues to be an anchor for our robust and stable democracy and our diverse country.... "As we mark this wonderful occasion, I invite all Canadians to look back on the country we were, celebrate the country we have become, and engage in conversations about the country we want to be. On behalf of all Canadians, I would like to congratulate Their Majesties on this auspicious occasion. I look forward to continuing to support our Sovereign in his important work," Simon said. "Long may he reign."

A SIGNIFICANT SPEECH BY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL

One of the elements which combine to make our Governor General a potentially valuable asset to the Crown is her ability, by birth and background, experience and much deep reflection, to bring to the attention of all Canadians matters touching the first inhabitants of our land: Inuit, Métis and First Nations. We are grateful to our friends at Rideau Hall for having arranged to have translated into English the entirety of Her Excellency's February 16th speech, large portions of which were in Inuktitut, when Mme Simon delivered a virtual keynote address at the Sivummut – Inuit Educators' Gathering. The League hopes you will enjoy reading and pondering this significant text: we have altered the paragraphing to save space.

Inuit education is a topic I'm very familiar with. It's also one that is personal to me. Growing up, I remember the trouble we would be in if we dared to speak our language, Inuktitut, on school grounds. This is not what school should be. And I'm glad it no longer is. But that doesn't mean that there isn't still work to do.

This gathering allows teachers from Inuit regions and other Arctic nations the chance to speak about important issues and to determine best practices and a way forward. You have shared knowledge and learned. You are shining examples of what Inuit children need to succeed - for now and in the future. Your work is a strong foundation for Inuit educators who support children in learning and sustaining their language.

I appreciate the efforts of Nunavut Tunngavik Incorporated not only for organizing this gathering, but also for fostering unity and connections between Inuit teachers.

To move forward, a successful teacher needs to develop and maintain two things: truth and trust. Truth means acknowledging the past, particularly the lived experiences of Inuit. It means finding ways to improve teaching the Inuktitut language in schools. Our language is central to our identity, it's part of who we are. In the past, those who forced curriculum on Inuit stripped language as a way to repress our culture. Today, we understand what was done, and how language is fundamental for our future and for reconciliation.

The International Decade of Indigenous Languages, proclaimed by the United Nations, began last year as a way to raise awareness of Indigenous languages, including those in danger of disappearing. Throughout the decade, it recognizes the importance of preserving, revitalizing and promoting these languages as a way to strengthen culture.

Too many Indigenous languages have already been lost. The continued vitality of these languages should not be taken for granted. I brought my language with me to Rideau Hall and it influences my work. Taking the opportunity to speak Inuktitut is a way to show its importance to all Canadians. You have spoken this week about Inuit Qaujimajatuqangit, and the importance of using that as the foundation for curriculum development.

Each principle is a truth, and you've addressed many of them during this gathering: making decisions through consensus, respecting others and inclusivity. Simply by being here, you're fulfilling another principle: you're working together to build a better system for our Inuit children.

To quote from the 2011 National Strategy for Inuit Education, that I led the development of when I was chairperson of the National Committee: "[Developing new curriculum] requires collaboration between Inuit educators and elders to develop new learning modules, new Inuit-language terminology, and to mentor the new generation of younger teachers in appropriate methods."

Throughout my career, I have aspired to support positive experiences for Inuit children in school. It is one way to heal from the pain inflicted by the education system and residential schools, and the generational trauma that remains a burden for parents and grandparents.

But to move forward requires truth and trust. It requires trust in government and in an education system that has historically failed too many Indigenous children.

That trust is strained every time unmarked graves at residential schools are unearthed. It is in our minds every time we hear of young people who take their own lives because they see no way forward, they see no future.

You have a chance, here and now, to rebuild trust in a real and lasting way. To show our children that they can learn and sustain their language, that they can thrive in Canada and in their community.

I encourage you to:

- Reach out to parents and the community, and engage them in the classroom.
- Learn ways to support education delivery in Inuktitut.
- Be open and honest about what you need, and listen to what your students need.
- Take every opportunity to acknowledge your success, and also the success of your students - one way of doing this is to request to participate in the Governor General's Academic Medal Program. I encourage schools to contact our office to learn more if you're interested.

I was reminded of the importance of Arctic and Indigenous education during my State visit to Finland last week. Finland is also an Arctic nation and some remote areas have similar challenges as Canada's North. The Finnish system is focused on learning development, instead of teaching. Teachers adapt to the children's strengths and interests, and compensate for their weaknesses. They make learning easier to understand for the children, engaging them and giving them the tools they need to succeed.

For the Sami people, the flexibility to adapt lessons to a community allows them to teach in their own language first, before introducing Finnish or English. And when the expertise is not available locally, distance learning is available. It's not a surprise, then, to learn that Finland has the highest literacy rate in the world.

We have so much we can learn outside our own borders. There is every reason to apply and tailor successful models to our own unique circumstances. In this way, Inuktitut and other Indigenous languages can thrive.

And we all have a part to play.

Last year, on the National Day for Truth and Reconciliation, I hosted about 100 children here at Rideau Hall. I took that opportunity to teach them how to say an important word that is central to my life and to my mandate: ajuinnata. I wanted to let them know how important my language and culture is to me. It was a way for me to pass on my knowledge and passion to the next generation.

Ajuinnata, in my dialect, means to never give up; it's a promise to commit to action, no matter how difficult the cause. In the spirit of ajuinnata, you are working together to promote truth and build trust, to create a bright future for all Inuit children. It is a hard task, but one worth doing, and one that we must succeed at.

I appreciate your efforts as Inuit educators, and encourage you to continue building on the connections made over the course of this gathering for the benefit of students and teachers alike.

Lettre ouverte à la gouverneure générale www.theglobeandmail.com/politics/article-king-charles-has-work-to-do-to-cultivate-ties-with-canada-governor/

Le président Finch a décidé que la réponse de la Ligue se ferait après le couronnement afin d'éviter toute controverse qui pourrait éclipser les joyeuses festivités partagées par les Canadiens.

10 mai

Votre Excellence,

Quel bonheur de lire que vous – et des dirigeants d'organisations autochtones nationales – avez eu une audience avec Sa Majesté le Roi avant son couronnement. Comme vous le savez, le Roi prête une oreille attentive aux questions de réconciliation.

Comme vous étiez spectaculaire le jour du couronnement, revêtue d'une robe conçue spécialement pour l'occasion par une talentueuse artiste du Nunavik. Votre fierté rayonnait sur les nombreuses photos que j'ai vues.

Cependant, Votre Excellence, savez-vous à quel point vos remarques sur la Couronne canadienne et notre Roi ont profondément blessé de nombreuses personnes dans le pays où vous êtes censé apporter l'unité et un but commun, plutôt que la division et la discorde ?

Comment avez-vous jugé opportun d'exprimer ces opinions – douteuses de la part d'un vice-roi à n'importe quel moment – mais surtout le week-end du couronnement du roi ? Comment vous sentiriez-vous si votre installation en tant que gouverneure générale avait été troublée par une personne employée par le gouvernement et dont les commentaires auraient attiré l'attention comme les vôtres ?

Qu'imaginez-vous que Charles – en tant qu'être humain – puisse ressentir, lors de la cérémonie d'inauguration de son mandat de souverain, en entendant et en lisant votre critique de lui-même et de son rôle dans ce pays ? C'est d'autant plus incroyable que vous êtes l'un des rares Canadiens à avoir l'accès et la possibilité – et le privilège – de demander au monarque d'écouter vos conseils et de discuter de tout ce que vous voulez en toute confidentialité.

Au moins, je suis réconforté par votre déclaration du jour du couronnement, dans laquelle vous avez exprimé votre soutien continu à notre Souverain dans son travail important. J'espère qu'à l'avenir, ce soutien sera renforcé et démontré quotidiennement dans votre rôle de représentant du Roi au Canada.

C'est dans la tristesse, et non dans la colère, et dans l'attente, et non dans la morosité, que je reste, le serviteur obéissant de votre Excellence,

Robert Finch

Président national de la Ligue monarchiste du Canada

Un sujet loyal de longue date du Roi et de sa défunte mère

SUR UNE NOTE PLUS POSITIVE

En même temps, nous avons certainement loué la déclaration de Son Excellence le jour du couronnement, et nous espérons que ce sera le ton qu'elle adoptera à l'avenir – en épargnant les préoccupations et même les critiques qu'elle peut à juste titre partager avec le Premier ministre ou même le Roi lui-même.

Dans sa déclaration de félicitations à Sa Majesté, Mme Simon a noté que si beaucoup de choses ont changé au cours des 70 années qui se sont écoulées depuis le dernier couronnement, y compris la Couronne, "elle continue d'être le point d'an-crage de notre démocratie robuste et stable et de notre pays diversifié" (...). "À l'occasion de ce merveilleux événement, j'invite tous les Canadiens à se remémorer le pays que nous étions, à célébrer le pays que nous sommes devenus et à engager des conversations sur le pays que nous voulons devenir.

Au nom de tous les Canadiens, je tiens à féliciter Leurs Majestés en cette occasion propice. Je me réjouis de continuer à soutenir notre Souverain dans son travail important", a déclaré M. Simon. "Qu'il règne longtemps!

28 LEAGUE MEMBERS IN LONDON FOR CORONATION

selected reports by Jonathan Brickwood & Daniel Guenther, co-leaders

Cambridge

The trip's first group expedition visits historic Cambridge, taking in the sights and sounds of the bustling academic town.

This is graciously arranged by League member and former Youth Chairman, Neil MacAlasdair, a don, who gives us a behind the scenes look at the renowned colleges - including access to Jesus college.

The group enjoys the fascinating details, including the modernist dormitory buildings which housed the then-Earl of Wessex during his time as a student. Lunch at the town's medieval market square provides a rest from our strolls around the streets brimming with historical architecture and quaint shops. Perhaps most memorably, we attend Evensong at King's College Chapel, renowned for its choir which sings under the world's largest Gothic fan vault.

Impressive! Back to London, we meet a surprise dress rehearsal for the Coronation featuring military from the the Commonwealth.

We are thrilled to see parts of the Canadian contingent marching alongside our Australian brethren - everyone practicing was beaming and evidently proud to be part of this historic occasion.

Hampton Court

It's Wednesday, and a dozen of our crew train Hampton Court, and cross the Thames to the Palaces - note the plural, Hampton Court is not just Henry VIII's Palace, but several: renovated, expanded and partially burned over the years, especially beloved by William & Mary - and more recently, site of Grace and Favour apartments. Taken on our private tour by a wonderful Blue Badge Guide, Christine, we visit inter alia the kitchens, the Privy Gardens, restored to William & Mary glory; and the double throne rooms of William: a perfect one-day excursion.

Canada's Flag honours George VI and his Queen on Mall

It is Coronation Day-eve. Our plan is to walk to the Mall Memorial for George VI and Queen Elizabeth (later Queen Mother), lay a wreath, and sing O Canada while displaying our massive Canada flag. Absent a reliable florist, I accompanied the group to The Mall, while Daniel goes in the other direction and acquires a lovely red and white bouquet, with individual red and white roses for each of us to lay. A few of us have the good fortune, to see Charles & Camilla in their motorcade. A wave, a head bow, and a smile, passed between those few graced with Their Presence. I, sadly, was not so privileged.

At Carlton Gardens, we spend a few minutes taking in the memorial, before we begin to unfurl our flag. Those who have been on our previous tours - the Royal Wedding, and Jubilee - will remember the massive 4 x 3 ft Canada Flags sewn together thanks to the commission donated by long-time League member, Byron Thomas. Unfurling it draws the attention of those walking by, as with media which had been informed of the event. Once the flag was on display, we approached the base of the memorial - Queen Elizabeth in front and below her husband, George VI. I lay the first bouquet, followed by each of our members in turn, then we gather behind the flag to sing O Canada. In all, the laying of the flowers, the unfurling of the flag, and the singing of the anthem are a wonderful tribute to the late Queen's parents, and the King's grandparents.

Following our time at the memorial, we proceed to Canada House to view the exhibition on His Majesty. The rain today notwithstanding, we arrived relatively dry at the Maple Leaf Pub, London 's gathering place for expat Canadians to get a taste of sports and home. After drink and some food, we depart, anticipating the morrow.

TOUR MEMBERS' SPECIAL MOMENTS

My first time seeing the King in person, he was wearing the Imperial State Crown while in the Gold State Coach on the way back to Buckingham Palace. It was quite remarkable to witness this with my bare eyes.

Member from Plamondon, AB

...it was, quite simply, the best and most joyful trip I have ever been on. To be there on such an historic occasion...was one of the highlights of my life - from the instant friendships I made, to the stories I will dine out on for years to come, to being overcome with emotion as my new-found friends decorated me in flags for my night on The Mall-I will never forget it.

Dave Henderson, Belleville, ON

What a thrill to see Commonwealth flags interspersed with Union flags on the Mall. Marlene McCracken, Kingston, ON A highlight of the trip was when our entire group walked through St James's Park to pay tribute to George VI and Elizabeth, where we placed flowers individually at their memorial. I could sense the commitment of our League members towards our Canadian history and to our Canadian Monarchy.

*Anna Orban-Imreh,
Mountain View, AB*

...at St. George's Chapel at Windsor Castle, at the tomb of Her late Majesty. Getting to pay my respects to the Queen so close to her burial spot and that of the Royal Family was a very special and poignant moment.

Statement by Chairman Finch

ELIZABETH II STATUE TO BE ERECTED IN TORONTO

Maquette of Elizabeth II statue destined for Ontario Legislature grounds.

Congratulations to Premier Ford & Mr Speaker Arnott, together with the Ontario Legislature's Board of Internal Economy, for the long-awaited announcement that a Statue of our Late Queen will be erected at Queen's Park! Our only regret is that Her Majesty was not accorded the opportunity to unveil and see it for herself.

As your Dominion Chairman, I wish to make it clear that the "monarchist group" or "monarchists" (small 'm') referred to in various news reports never did and do not include the League! As much as we heartily endorsed the concept of honouring HM in this way, our priorities lie in the sort of action you see in our day-to-day work. Additionally, we knew from the start the League had neither the expertise, resources or staffing necessary for this ambitious effort to succeed, and felt equally certain that the small monarchist body involved, however well-intentioned, was not positioned to do so, either.

Hindsight might suggest a sophisticated approach to mass fund-raising of small amounts from the public, with a match promised by the Ontario government, could have been successful. A great many people who are not "Monarchists" enormously admired The Queen, and a significant take-up by the citizenry together with governmental support would have encouraged a few big donors to feel confident that their dollars were going to a viable project.

In retrospect, the inevitability of long delay, and the treatment meted out to the talented Sculptor Ruth Abernethy, could have been foreseen, along with the withdrawal of a principal donor's pledge. With the exception of the involvement of Michael Smith, a dedicated, loyal and self-effacing operator with a long history of political savvy, who helped save it, a team of talents was simply not there to bring the project home. We all look forward to our King's unveiling this statue during his anticipated Canadian Homecoming, and repeat our appreciation of Premier Ford and Mr Speaker Arnott's leadership.

Al-Dadah Hits Out Against Fed's Failure to Challenge National Assembly's Oath Legislation

Senior Québec Officer Karim Al-Dadah hit the national media on March 3 in support of one of the League's primary concerns: to reverse the failure of the Government of Canada to mount a legal challenge to "Bill 4", the patently unconstitutional Act of Quebec's National Assembly, thereby ignoring Canada's Constitution in respect of the Oath prescribed for members of legislative assemblies - an Oath which even the most hard-bitten separatist could take in that it guarantees that very democratic process which is the rule of law - and which we presume even an independent Quebec would wish to have as opposed to some anarchical state. Karim's taut intervention appeared in National Post and was carried in many other outlets of PostMedia at

Al-Dadah dénonce l'incapacité du gouvernement à contester la loi sur le serment de l'assemblée nationale

L'agent principal du Québec, Karim Al-Dadah, est intervenu dans les médias nationaux le 3 mars pour soutenir l'une des principales préoccupations de la Ligue : renverser le fait que le gouvernement du Canada n'ait pas contesté juridiquement le "projet de loi 4", la loi manifestement inconstitutionnelle de l'Assemblée nationale du Québec, ignorant ainsi la Constitution du Canada en ce qui concerne le serment prescrit aux membres des assemblées législatives - un serment que même le séparatiste le plus acharné pourrait accepter en ce qu'il garantit ce même processus démocratique qu'est la primauté du droit - et que, nous le supposons, même un Québec indépendant souhaiterait avoir au lieu d'un État anarchique.

L'intervention de Karim a été publiée dans le National Post et a été reprise dans de nombreux autres points de vente de PostMedia à l'adresse ci-dessus (en anglais)

ARTHUR MACRAE 1931-2023

It is with sadness we heard of Toronto member Arthur's death on May 31st. Devoted husband of Judith Watkins, an Anglican priest and inveterate traveler, sometime military chaplain and teacher, Arthur was a member of the League for many years, and bore bravely an assortment of afflictions. The Dominion Chairman sent flowers to Judith on behalf of the membership.

LEAGUE NOTES

THE LEAGUE'S WEBSITE REVISED: A WORD FROM CHAIRMAN FINCH

The League's website is, not surprisingly, a singularly vital hub of our outreach to all Canadians and provider of information for our members and friends. More, the Store allows folk to join, renew, make sales orders and contribute funds, which as cheque usage declines, every year accounts for more and more of our revenue.

One laborious task in the years to come.

Paying the final account yesterday for the yeoman work of the team brought the total to well over $14,000!

RÉVISION DU SITE INTERNET DE LA LIGUE : UN MOT DU PRÉSIDENT FINCH

Le site Web de la Ligue est, comme on peut s'y attendre, un élément essentiel de notre rayonnement auprès de tous les Canadiens et un fournisseur d'informations pour nos membres et nos amis. De plus, le magasin permet aux gens d'adhérer, de renouveler leur adhésion, de passer des commandes et de verser des fonds qui, à mesure que l'utilisation des chèques diminue, représentent chaque année une part de plus en plus importante de nos revenus.

L'une des tâches laborieuses du récent changement de plateforme a impliqué non seulement de nombreuses mises à jour et révisions d'informations factuelles (n'oubliez pas que l'ensemble du contenu est disponible dans les deux langues officielles), mais aussi un nombre incroyable de changements de pronoms, de noms et de titres (comme dans Sa Majesté, et non Sa Majesté). Maintenant monté sur WordPress, le site sera beaucoup plus facile pour Ted, notre précieux collègue, de mettre à jour les informations rapidement.

Un aspect du site qui passe parfois inaperçu est la quantité de détails sur la monarchie canadienne qui sont non seulement intéressants, mais aussi précieux pour les médias, ainsi que dans les discussions amicales et les débats publics. Nous recent change of platform involved not only many updates and revisions of factual information, (remember, the entire contents are available in both Official Languages) but an incredible number of changes to pronouns, nouns and titles (as in His Majesty, not Her Majesty).

Now mounted in WordPress, the site will be much easier for Ted, our invaluable colleague and webmaster, to update information quickly.

An sometimes under-noticed aspect of the site is the amount of detail about Canada's Monarchy which is not only interesting, but invaluable to the media, as well as in friendly discussions and public debate alike.

We will be commending some of these "hidden treasures" to members in EComms during the remainder of the year - and Logan will be doing the same in our social media outreach.

Doing this overdue and absolutely necessary work did not come cheap: it is a task for experts, and an investment for présenterons certains de ces "trésors cachés" aux membres d'EComms pendant le reste de l'année - et Logan fera de même dans le cadre de ses activités de sensibilisation sur les médias sociaux.

Ce travail tardif et absolument nécessaire n'a pas été bon marché : il s'agit d'une tâche d'experts et d'un investissement pour les années à venir. En payant le dernier compte hier pour le travail acharné de l'équipe, nous avons atteint un total de plus de 14 000 $!

LEAGUE DISTRIBUTES OVER 80,000 EDUCATIONAL BOOKLETS

Grant ends - provision of funding now depends on members' support

With the financial backing of Canadian Heritage, the brilliant online paid advertising by Logan Luit and the faultless execution of delivering many packages of our educational booklets thanks to Ted Sancton/Studio Melrose, the League had exceeded the grant target of 70,000 to honour the Platinum Jubilee by over 15% - and is now somewhere north of 81,000 between February 2022 to date!

We await eagerly the Homecoming of Charles and Camilla so that we can reprint the English edition to reflect the change in Reign with text and pictures. The French edition (which outstrips significantly the proportion of Canada's French population) is accurate as to text; and when the current supply dwindles, we will adjust pictures.

In that the grant terminated March 31, we revert confident of your support to continue this important aspect of our outreach to non-members, especially to schools and youth organizations.

JOURNAL DE LA LIGUE

LA LIGUE DISTRIBUE PLUS DE 80 000 BROCHURES ÉDUCATIVES

La subvention prend fin - le financement dépend du soutien des membres

Grâce au soutien financier de Patrio-moine canadien et à l'exécution sans faille de la livraison de nombreux paquets de nos livrets éducatifs grâce à Ted Sancton/Studio Melrose, la Ligue a dépassé de plus de 15 % l'objectif de subvention de 70 000 pour honorer le Jubilé de platine - et se situe maintenant quelque part au nord de 81 000 entre février 2022 et aujourd'hui!

Nous attendons avec impatience le retour de Charles et Camilla afin de pouvoir réimprimer l'édition anglaise pour refléter le changement de règne avec des textes et des photos. L'édition française (ce qui dépasse largement la proportion de la population française du Canada) est exacte en ce qui concerne le texte; et lorsque les stocks actuels diminueront, nous ajusterons les images.

La subvention ayant pris fin le 31 mars, nous comptons sur votre soutien pour poursuivre cet aspect important de notre action de sensibilisation auprès des non-membres, en particulier auprès des écoles et des organisations de jeunesse.
